Abstract

The Hong Kong Monetary Authority published the Open API Framework in July 2018 setting an industry-led and a four-phase approach to the implementation of Open API for the banking industry. The first phase target is set for the end of January 2019 and the industry is working towards this timetable. The speaker will share with audience on:

- What is Open API and what are the benefits for the banking industry
- How will Open API be implemented
- How is Hong Kong's Open API Framework different from other jurisdictions
- What risks are envisaged and how they may be mitigated
